Ellerbe's Delicious Idea

When even the olive oil is locally produced (Bella Vista grows and presses the oil in the Texas Hill Country), you know childhood friends and co-owners Richard King and Molly McCook's commitment to serving locally grown and produced food at Ellerbe Fine Foods runs deep. But this month, Ellerbe makes its business concept even more exciting with the opening of its market. King says the pair wanted to get their upscale restaurant running smoothly before they opened the market portion of the business but, in the next few weeks, you'll be able to stop in at Ellerbe and purchase upscale prepared meals to go. In addition to fine-dining take-away, the market will offer locally produced jams, cheeses, wines and specialty meats. Ellerbe Fine Foods serves lunch Tuesday-Friday and dinner Tuesday-Saturday in a charming green-and-white building at 1501 W. Magnolia Ave., Fort Worth; 817-926-3663, www.ellerbefinefoods.com

Preppy-Perfect Attire

Looking for clothing to outfit the young gentleman in the family before he heads off to college? The Squire Shop carries a selection of shirts by companies such as Southern Proper, Southern Tide and Vineyard Vines that are run by young entrepreneurs. All of the apparel is aimed at the upscale young adult market. Southern Proper, based in Atlanta, makes polo shirts, frat hats and ties in whimsical patterns, all featuring its Labrador logo; Vineyard Vines, based in Martha's Vineyard, uses a whale logo; and Southern Tide, based in South Carolina, makes shirts and shorts with a Skip Jack fish logo. Cotton and spandex Southern Proper turquoise shirt, above left, is $59.50, Vineyard Vines striped polo shirt, above right, is $69.50, and Vineyard Vines TCU horned frog tie is $75 at the Squire Shop, 4516 Hartwood Drive, Fort Worth; 817-927-8722.
